Julia Keefe is an Associate in the Providence, RI office of Boyle | Shaughnessy Law. Julia handles a variety of cases defending claims involving professional liability, premise liability, and contractual disputes, among others. Julia is currently admitted in Rhode Island state court.

Julia graduated from Roger Williams University School of Law cum laude in May 2025. While studying there she had the privilege of arguing in front of the Rhode Island Supreme Court as a finalist in the Esther Clark Moot Court Competition. As a result of that experience, she was invited to intern with the Honorable Justice William P. Robinson III. Julia also worked as a Rule 9 Student Attorney at the Rhode Island Attorney General's Office in Washington Count. Julia is most proud to have been the student leader for the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program providing her community with free income tax services and earning her over 100 hours in pro bono work.

Julia graduated from Bryant University in May 2018 where she majored in Global Supply Chain Management. She began her career as an operations manager in the fashion industry. It was through that experience that she was inspired to pursue law school and make a more direct and meaningful impact working with people.
