Overview

Laura Sannicandro is a Shareholder at Boyle | Shaughnessy Law. Admitted to practice law in Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, and Maine. Laura primarily practices in the Boston, Manchester, Woodstock, and Portland offices.

Laura has extensive experience assisting private and public clients in all aspects of civil litigation in both state and federal courts, from pre-suit matters, through discovery, motion practice, dispositive motions, mediation, arbitration, trials, post-trial motions, and appeals. Laura's appellate experience includes the Massachusetts Appeals Court, the New Hampshire Supreme Court, the First Circuit, the Second Circuit, and the Vermont Supreme Court.

During a brief hiatus from the firm, Laura spent time in public service working at the New Hampshire Department of Justice, where she was appointed by Governor Sununu to be an Assistant Attorney General. In that role, Laura had the opportunity to exclusively represent New Hampshire state agencies and employees sued in their official capacity in civil matters. Additionally, Laura managed the defense of a class action through the class certification stage.

Laura's practice is concentrated in litigation, trucking liability, transportation-related accidents, premises liability, product liability, construction accidents, employment, municipal issues, medical and legal malpractice, class actions, professional negligence, bad faith claims, education claims, and other complex matters.

Laura has successfully defended clients at trial and in various forms of alternative dispute resolution including arbitrations, mediations, and judicial settlement conferences. Additionally, Laura has obtained successful appellate results from various appeals courts.
