Overview

Boyle | Shaughnessy Law's Business Litigation group represents clients in both large and small, domestic and international business disputes in courts and arbitration proceedings throughout New England. These matters involve issues of employment, contractual disputes, business torts and bad faith litigation, as well as procurement, franchise, construction, and commercial lending disputes.

Our experienced Attorneys provide strategic and straight-forward advice to our business litigation clients, understanding that each comes to Boyle | Shaughnessy Law with an individual set of business-focused needs and concerns. Our goal is to work closely with our clients to devise a cost-effective and result-driven strategy to meet their individual needs. We maintain constant communication throughout the litigation process to ensure our clients are fully informed of all aspects of a case. This includes the earliest evaluation of a matter, to strategy development and budgeting, through resolution.

Utilizing these strategies, we have maintained a highly successful trial record handling fact-driven cases in complex commercial settings. Boyle | Shaughnessy Law has also proven successful in the mediation and arbitration of business disputes, achieving favorable results for clients with varied goals. We have the knowledge, skills and experience required to provide our clients with result-driven solutions to their business litigation objectives.
