Overview

Boyle | Shaughnessy's Education Law Group offers legal guidance and support to public and private schools and educational facilities across New England. Our attorneys possess vast knowledge of challenges in education law, including special education requirements, students' and parents' rights, IDEA and 504 compliance, concerns arising under the ADA, school policy, and advocacy across administrative processes. Education lies at the intersection of state and federal law, and our team is committed to partnering with our clients to navigate complex litigation questions that flow therefrom with expertise.
