Overview

Boyle | Shaughnessy Law's Environmental Law Group provides unmatched service to clients throughout New England in all manner of environmental and toxic tort matters. Our Attorneys possess a wealth of environmental and scientific knowledge, including experience in engineering and government enforcement, allowing us to provide aggressive, comprehensive, and cost effective representation to our clients.

Our Attorneys provide comprehensive representation in all New England state and federal courts, as well before all federal, state and local environmental agencies. We provide unparalleled representation to clients with respect to Superfund defense work, and litigation brought under state "Mini-Superfund Acts" for both single and long-term pollution related events. Additionally, our Attorneys defend toxic tort claims on behalf of manufacturers, suppliers and installers of various products including exposures to:

- TCE
- Asbestos
- Lead
- Pesticides

- PFAS
- Mold
- Ammonia
- Carbon Monoxide

- Benzene
- Petroleum Products
- Diacetyl

Boyle | Shaughnessy's Environmental Attorneys counsel manufacturers and property owners with respect to all manner of environmental issues, including to toxic exposure, workplace safety issues, and OSHA regulation, site remediation, contamination issues and insurance coverage matters. Working with our Appellate Group, we also provide appellate service with respect to environmental and toxic tort matters.
