Overview

Boyle | Shaughnessy Law’s Professional Malpractice group handles a wide variety of professional malpractice claims brought against lawyers, architects, engineers, accountants, real estate brokers, and other miscellaneous professionals. The extensive trial experience of our Attorneys ensures that each professional’s case is handled discreetly, with a focus on swiftly resolving the dispute. We work diligently to recognize the needs of each professional we represent to ensure that each professional’s businesses and rights are firmly protected.

We provide zealous representation defending professionals in individual cases in all courts, before regulatory bodies and in arbitrations and mediations. In addition to trial experience defending professionals in superior courts, federal courts and appeals, we frequently assist with investigations and defend professionals in hearings before licensing boards. Our long track record of success is built upon our experience and knowledge of the unique legal challenges professionals face. Opportunities for early resolution on a favorable basis are identified early, but when necessary our trial record is second to none.
